Midland woman dies in Turkish crash

Jennifer Martin, a 29-year-old secretary from Sutton Coldfield, was named last night as one of five people killed when a British touring bus toppled into a ditch in Turkey at the weekend.

The others killed were Mary Binning, of Southampton, Stephen Norria, of Leicester, and an Australian and an American, a spokesman for Encounter Overland Tours, of London, said.

Seven other people were injured, none critically. The bus was carrying 18 passengers from London to India.

The accident happened about 12 miles from the Eastern Turkish city of Mus. The driver swerved to avoid a concrete pipe protruding from the hard shoulder as he was pulling off the road, and the bus rolled down a bank, the spokesman said.

The bodies are now being taken by road 450 miles from Erzerum to Ankara, from where they will be flown home, he added.

The passengers who were not hurt, and passengers in a second bus owned by the same company, are now camping in Mus.
